Summary

The name of the topic is “Fire in a hotel”. The story of the lesson is about a blind man and his pet. John F. Brown is a blind man. He booked a room in Garden Hotel but the receptionist did not allow his dog to stay with him in a hotel. Mr John explained that Chum was not a pet, he was eyes for him. The manager of the hotel allowed them to stay there.

Next day there was fire in the hotel. Mr John and his pet, Chum managed to save their lives. Then he explained to a news reporter how he saved himself and his dog, “He was tired and went to sleep. Chum woke him up. He smelt smoke, just then the fire alarm went off. He wet some towels and put them along the bottom of the door. He tried the phone, it was dead. They laid on the floor. In fear, minutes seemed like hours to them. Then, he heard the sound of fire engines. He rushed to the window and waved and shouted. Moments later, the fireman reached there but they did not want to take Chum because it was against the rules. He explained to them about chum’s importance. In seconds later, they were both safe on the ground.
